Well, you have the Yough. Oil might still have some trout, though it's probably in it's transition to bass time. Most other larger streams, including Neshanock, are likely already there.

Fish for bass. Or, if you want trout, focus on smallish wild trout streams. There are plenty in the Laurel Highlands, or NW PA (generally gotta get north of 80 and east of Oil City/Franklin, though that region is really where it starts). Not much around the city.
