

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Jackson Hole Snake River

Re: Jackson Hole Snake River

Author: : boychick

Date: : 2013/6/21 6:45:28

URL:

When I was in Jackson last summer, I fished the Gros Ventre, Flat Creek in the National Elk Refuge, and the South Fork of the Snake in ID. Flat Creek is a special place, it is technical spring creek fishing for big selective cutts in a beautiful meadow setting. The Gros Ventre is a great fishery if you're wading. I fished between lower slide lake and the snake, it fished well at every pull off. The snake is huge water, you'll need a drift boat to fish it. If you want to go that route, World Cast Anglers is a great guide outfit out Victor ID, they also guide out of the Jackson Orvis store. Check out the Hoback River also, its a trib to the Snake that is South of Jackson. The South Fork of the Snake is worth a day in the drift boat. The fishing is for cutts, bows, cuttbows, and browns, the fish are bigger in general than in the Snake above Jackson, and they are very eager to take a fly. I fished big foam dries the entire time I was on the South Fork. I would fish the South Fork before I fished the Snake above Jackson. Check out the High Country Fly shop website, they have some maps and other info on their site and so does World Cast. Good luck, have a great trip.