Ok, things are working out a bit. And I can offer an invite to anyone interested. Sorry to foxgap for potentially stealing a newbie!!!

Swattie and I will be there for the beginning at 10. We intend to stay for a little while and help where appropriate. And then take off to explore some small streams. We do have 3rd person as a "maybe." But willing to add 1 newbie either way.

So, the first newbie interested feel free to speak up, you are invited. This will be an exploring trip, to smallish streams that are new to both Swattie and I, and will not be named on the public forum. So there is no promise of success, and we could do an awful lot of driving around with not a whole lot to show for it.

But there's also a shot at finding a gem. Could be brookies or browns or both. We have a Plan A and several backup plans in case we run into posted land or whatever. In other words, an authentic exploring trip that may or may not work out, but a newbie would learn how to go about the process of finding their own hidden gems, from 2 fishermen who are experienced at this type of fishing.

Would likely be a FULL day with a late return, and difficulty of terrain is uncertain, but likely difficult, lol. Small stream, rocky gorge type places. If you have appropriate equipment, bring it. If not, let us know.
