ry, Though a boat helps when wipers are deep, you don't usually fly fish those situations anyway. They come shallow a lot of times to eat, especially now at night. As long as you know a few spots that are wade-able and where they frequent, you can drive around looking for them that way. I usually rotate every hour until I hit them. Many trips though are blank. But when you do get into them. And some decent sized ones, you will be hooked. PM me if you want more information.
