What brought this up for me was seeing a post that someone is planning to fish Penns Creek this weekend. Penns is one of the streams that warms up pretty quickly. I think Penns will go well over 70F this weekend.

Not sure if you were talking about my post or not but thanks for the heads up. If I do end up going to Penns at all I'll be sure to take a temp.

Today I fished a river in NW PA for bass and stuff, but I also caught a leftover rainbow. Fought very well and seemed very healthy, colorful too, but not sure how much he has left in him. Water temp approached 73 there today.
