becoming a life member of the little juniata river assoc (little juniata.org) gets you a ~4hr river tour/fishing trip from the president. During the tour he will indicate areas that are best to fish during each season, including the summer. Clearly, some areas are much better than others in the summer. Not just because of water temps, but other factors too.

A rule of thumb is the section between limestone road and Spruce creek is fishable unless we have very low water and extended high in the 90s during the day and mid 60s lows.

Remember, the evening lows are most important contributor to rising water temps. High low temps (63-70) mean humid air. This makes a blanket over the water, which reduces evaporative and radiative cooling of the waters in the evening. This leads to a build up of temperatures.
