

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : small stream exploration

Re: small stream exploration

Author: : sarce

Date: : 2013/6/22 18:35:13

URL:

I was on a small headwater stream today, was catching 4-5" brookies and then got an 11" brown out of nowhere. Looked closely in the deep holes after that and saw a few browns in that size range, but I only caught that one. They are just way tougher to catch, especially this time of year.

Also keep in mind that those dams aren't as big of a barrier during high water, and sometimes floods will open up side channels around the dams that the fish will use.