

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Minimalist Fishing

Minimalist Fishing

Author: : thebassman

Date: : 2013/6/24 17:51:51

URL:

Hey,

Just curious if anyone takes a more minimal approach when it comes to fly fishing. If so, then how is it going?

Something I have tried since last year, and was wondering if I was the only one.

My set-up is one rod/reel, maybe two tippet spools, a few leaders, one fly box, and maybe floatant/indicators.

For longer days though I find the lack of space in the chest pack killer when I cannot take water, or a snack. I am looking to get a large waist pack like the Umpqua Ledge 500 pack so I can take water/snack. I guess I could always just take a backpack with the chest pack.

Who else packs the minimal amount? or do you take a whole fly shop with you?