I agree Pat. Lots of fish with full bellies!

One thing I have to remember to do next time with cicadas is give the fish more time to get the fly in its mouth. My hookup/landing ratio has not been very good. Either the fish inhales it, or it's a swipe. The fly is so big that it really is different than fishing your typical terrestrial.

When I give Turd Campbell some goldfish or minnows, he literally has them coming out of his gills he eats so many at once. I want to see that picture with a wild brookie or brown. Cicadas pouring out of him.

Anyway, to your point, not only are the cicadas big, the fish are just stuffed with them. I hope you guys can post more pics like the one above. Neat stuff, no pun intended
