

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Dance Flies

Re: Dance Flies

Author: : crepuscular

Date: : 2013/6/25 9:20:19

URL:

Cool info! With the large numbers of those dance fly swarms that you see one would think that they must be on the menu for fish. I'd love to see a photo of the pattern you describe.

Just as an aside, to my knowledge, Hilara is not present in streams of PA. There are however several other genera of Empididae. That are present. The list that I have includes, Chelifera, Clinocera, Hemerodromia, Neoplasta, Oregeton, Wiedemannia. The first three, are the ones that I see most often.