Well, the trip starts today, but as my luck would have it this will be the hottest week of the year so far! And storms are in the forecast for the entire week. I know the limestoners will be ok temp wise(except for maybe Penns as I'm told), but hopefully the brookie streams and the like aren't too toasty. I'll definitely be taking the thermometer on this trip. If all else fails it'll be nice just to get away from it all, which in the grand scheme of things is what it's all about.
