Are river otters protected at all, where do these things birth their pups. I doubt they like to get drowned if it's in banks of the river after a raft release. Maybe that is why I don't see more down there, because I know they are in Red Rock, so if someone is seeing them down in Allentown, maybe they don't like the fluctuations on the Lehigh for offspring?

Those seeps are what have allowed most of us to experience trout year round in the upper Gorge, some of the seeps are whole mountain sides of water, which is probably the result of the protected sgls and state parks that run above and throughout the Gorge. A lot of big seeps that I only found from doing some not so safe explorin.
