

Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : a few dry flies

Re: a few dry flies

Author: : gfen

Date: : 2013/6/27 23:51:54

URL:

Antron wicks water, ergo antron is the worst choice. If you're making posts from a synthetic, you use poly yarn.

Animal fur is different. Some are more resistant to water logging than others. The general rule of thumb is if you're making a floating fly, you want the fur of a water mammal (beaver, etc). If you'e making a fly that sinks, then a land mammal (rabbit).