

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Switzerland

Re: Switzerland

Author: : JasonS

Date: : 2013/6/28 16:56:51

URL:

Quote:

pcray1231 wrote:

Yeah, I saw Zermatt and thought about going down there. Interlaken is probably a more likely jumping around point, though. I don't have forever, and getting to Zermatt would be spending more time travelling, less time for fun. But from Interlaken you can see many of the sights north of Zermatt.

That's kind of why I wanted to do the Alps trip instead of the French options. It's in the direction I wanted to go anyway. Afish's picture is from the guide I am trying (unsuccessfully) to contact. But it just doesn't look right to me!!!! Where's that water coming from?, lol.

Interlaken is a really cool town. That's where I did the skydiving and canyoning. Lots of younger people. Balmers is where I've stayed everytime I've visited. Very cool place and loaded with people from all over the world.

<http://www.balmers.com/>