Trout fishing is getting tough down here due to summer temps.

Forget about the streams in the immediate area - they're burnt. As Letort said, Breeches is at the outer range of 45 minutes but water temps are warm there too and are now over 70 in the afternoon. The Run in Boiling Springs however, will have cold water and will be easy for your father. The section where it comes into Breeches stays cool for a distance below the confluence.... but will require your dad to wade across a riffle about 50' across and a foot deep with cobble rock (you have to cross at this point due to a canyon wall). If you do hit Breeches, bring your thermometer, focus on The Run and main stem in the early morning and you may find decent water temps as the weather has cooled the last few days.

Big Spring is about 55-60 minutes from Gburg; Letort is 45 and Falling Sp is about 30 and all these will be cold. FS has some decent spots that don't require wading and are fairly accessible. Another option within (barely) the 45 min range would be Codorus Lake for WW species or Codorus Creek for trout but Codorus Creek is tough to wade.
