The trout are definately on the Cicadas now.

Doesnt seem like how the reports from Centre county cicadas were, but impressive none the less. Violent strikes and they're getting some bellies.

I didnt catch every trout I saw, but every single cicada that went on the water didnt last long. It wasnt like that at the start of this emergence. Fished for one trout inparticular that refused me multiple times but the second a natural went over him he smashed it like he was waiting for it. Caught one that had to swim atleast 20 ft on a mission straight to my fly. Its a different experience. One I'm glad I finally got off my list.

I understand both sides spot-burning and hatch burning, but this is a once in 17 year occurance and I wont keep this one to myself.

Get up there if you can. Dont know how long they'll be around.
