I'm probably missing some fishing with my attitude that when the water and air are to hot to wear waders it's to hot to fish for trout.

It's just the conservative end of the spectrum of attitude on the topic and you certainly won't harm any fish that way. Our lone awesome trout stream in OH stays below 60F (in the upper 3rd of the river) all the way through Summer. Nothing better than wet wading that stream on a 90F day in July. Now, the fishing sucks during the day on those days, but man does it feel good. I waste my time fishing hoppers for dinks on those days during the day. The monster come out at dark 😊 As Pcray said, you PA boys have some nice cold small streams that fish pretty well in Summer. So jealous of that!!!
