

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Brownliners rejoice

Re: Brownliners rejoice

Author: : wgmiller

Date: : 2013/7/1 19:28:41

URL:

Funny thing is, you don't have to "brownline" to fish on carp. There are plenty of "trout streams" that have resident carp populations. The fact that they can thrive in crappy water makes them good candidates for degraded waterways, but they certainly can live just about anywhere.

After tying into one this past weekend, I can say that I will be making them a focus of future warmwater trips. To see my 8wt bend like that....yeah. Good stuff!