

Subject: : Stream Reports

Topic: : Yellow Breeches (Allenberry), Cumberland Co, 6-29-13

Re: Yellow Breeches (Allenberry), Cumberland Co, 6-29-13

Author: : BelAirSteve

Date: : 2013/7/1 22:45:27

URL:

I remember when I was in high school, I drove up to the park there with my cousin and brother. I remember watching the people feed the fish and the ducks, right in that little chute that comes out below the little lake. That was long before I fly fished, but my brother was on college and had been fly fishing for a couple of years.

We made our way downstream a bit, and I was casting a little Rebel crayfish lure on an ultralight spinning rod. Somehow I coaxed one of those giant trout to eat it. Looking back, I would estimate that fish to be somewhere in the neighborhood of 24", but you know how your mind has a way of playing tricks on you. I remember yelling for my brother to come help me land the fish, worried that it would break off my $3 lure! That was almost 30 years ago.

I've never been back there to fish again, but I enjoy reading the posts. I'll have to give it a shot, maybe in the fall.