When I first got my guitar, I made up my own cords and wrote my own songs.....I was Jammin'! But I never progressed as a musician until I actually learned the cords and notes and began to play songs. Simple ones at first, but building on what I learned I could play just about anything. Never reached the level of Clapton, but was offered to go on tour with a band (didn't do it....went to college).

yeah i have the same problem as my mrs when she's cooking, she cant follow a recipe to save he life... me well it's not as much of follow the recipe as well work with what i've got. note the hackle feathers came from a friend in a shoe box along with a bunch of other random what not.

mean while back to the vice, i'ge got two hours, before work, since the youngest decided it was time for everyone to be awake. an hour ago...
