

Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : Whiting Herbert Miner Pro Grade Saddle

Re: Whiting Herbert Miner Pro Grade Saddle

Author: : tctrout

Date: : 2013/7/2 7:05:15

URL:

Hackle is such a tough call; if you plan on staying in fly tying, I always suggest buying high quality materials. I prefer Clearwater Hackle and Collins Hackle; both are excellent companies with owners that know what they are doing. They are always a great value for the money you spend; for instance, all Clearwater saddles also come with a shlappen (which is basically a very buggy piece of marabou, great for so many patterns). I would check out these companies first by calling or emailing them, and possibly developing a relationship with them so you can build your collection of hackle in the future.

Good luck!

TC