

Subject: : Stream Reports

Topic: : Yellow Breeches (Allenberry), Cumberland Co, 6-29-13 Re: Yellow Breeches (Allenberry), Cumberland Co, 6-29-13

Author: : TimRobinsin Date: : 2013/7/2 19:45:22

URL:

temped the water at the top of "the run" where the water from children's lake comes in. in the spring water before the britches the temp is 62 degrees. directly across the stream in the breeches proper the water is 72 degrees. 150 yards downstream in the middle of the yellow breeches proper the temp was 70 degrees.

I know this is a very unscientific sampling but it gives you an idea of what is going on there.

Personally I think you're still alright fishing it but I would exercise some caution if you head out of "the run" area as I don't know where else the fish can find thermal refuge. The other thing to keep in mind is that you are mere minutes away from several spring creeks that are running in the mid to low 60's, have fish, and are fishing well right now.