Ok thanks. I'm uploading the photos to imgur from my phone and then typing in the links here because all image and filesharing sites are blocked on the work computer, but I'll try to make it work next time. The drift trip was fast paced with guides that are sick of taking pictures of every fish their clients catch, so I just netted and released them real quick. Then the flows on the Gallatin are still high and pretty dangerous, so I don't want to take my phone out when I'm standing in the water. I'll start taking more pictures when the wading gets easier later in the summer. I want one of those waterproof cameras, but I'd rather spend that money on gear at this point.
