I was the Little Lehigh this morning, July 4. The water was cloudy, but the tricos were there and the fish were on them. Started with 6X and had fish on from my second cast to about 10 AM when the risers basically shut off even though there were still bugs in the air and on the water. BTW, earlier in the hatch they seemed to prefer the females. I normally just fish the male spinners but thought I'd be a little fancier and started with the females which seemed to work.

Stopped at the Saucon on the way back and it was fairly clear with nobody fishing. 10,000 people at the park BTW. Nobody at the closed bridge.
