Can't explain the trout unless you would have specified the stretch from Upper Black Eddy to Easton, a stretch that receives wild browns from a number of tribes plus possibly stockies from NJ stockings and possible private hatchery escapement.

The stripers of the size most frequently being caught are from a large year class. Fear not, that population will be much smaller in the summer non tidal Del R in one to two years when a very weak year class dominates. Then you will be asking where all of the stripers are. So, I've now saved you the trouble of asking....you already know the answer.
