Both places offer cuisine from anywhere around the world. And in the world of chains, it's the same anywhere you go.

Mostly better bar food. Wings are FAR superior, so much so that it ain't funny. But the same is true for most other fried foods. I also think the hoagies in the Pitt area are far better than Philly, yes, even the steak hoagies. Slaw. Certainly more Italian food in the area than in Philly, and much more Polish influence as well.
