With this hot weather I usually only fish from 5:00am to about 8:00 am and had a question for others who do the same. Every time I get on the water at a real early hour I always convince myself to throw something big. Streamers/stonefly/hellgrammite since its still pretty dark. This rarely pays off unless the water is a little dirty but I cant help myself. Thats the formula right ? Sorta dark, early morning...throw big meat. Maybe tomorrow I'll just stick to a partridge and orange and wet ant tandem....
