I've always had problems tying an EHC. Instead, I now tie a very simple pattern that has worked very well for me.

The body is superfine dubbing, tan or black and the wing is several CDC feathers, tan, black or natural. I tie the tips of the CDC just a little past the hook bend. I also use some of the excess CDC fibers to blend into the dubbing. This pattern sits low in the water and I find that I get more hook-ups with this patterns than with an EHC.

I treat the CDC wing with Tiemco's Dry Magic
