yep, that was Bill and I, you should have said something! we didn't do too good either, lots of other boot prints up in there, creeks been getting fished a lot this year. 20 years ago there wouldn't have been a single footprint.

I think I'll wait till fall to fish it again.

I'm pretty sure I know what stream you guys were on, and yes bikerfish, 20 years ago that creek was a well-kept secret. Locals knew about it and shared the information very sparingly. Then the PFBC natural reproduction list became easily available and the rest, as they say, is history. It wouldn't be so crowded if there were other waters around that supported trout year round. Personally, I've only fished it a couple times... just not my cup of tea I guess.
