Thanks all for the suggestions and input. Given all of the options mentioned, I have decided to increase my stay another week to explore some of the locations mentioned. Setting up an itinerary to see how much I can fit in.....so far Gros Ventre, Flat Creek, and a visit to N Platte via Casper have earned spots. Maybe a short time on the Snake if the flows are low (bucket list thing)...Some dabbling in the park while heading north.

Still looking to spend the final three days up on the Lamar....I am with Transporter on the Lamar.....a little fickle at times, but absolutely one of the best locations imaginable when you hit it right!

I know it will be primarily hopper, terrestrial time, but am curious to see how the hatches and bug distribution changes going from south to north with the elevation changes, water temps, etc..
