

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Bug Info

Re: Bug Info

Author: : midgeman

Date: : 2013/7/8 13:16:45

URL:

Fox I encountered this one afternoon on the west branch of the D during a sulphur hatch. Fish were rising consistently and they weren't taking the big sulphurs. I was dumbfounded! So, I simply stared down at the water for minutes and there it was....BWO spinners laying sideways and wiggling. I removed my sulpher dry and landed a big brown on the first cast! It was an important lesson to learn and I'm glad it happened.

I find it just amazing that trout will snub a larger live insect for a smaller dying insect.