

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : lanyard options

Re: lanyard options

Author: : boychick

Date: : 2013/7/8 22:08:19

URL:

Just make one. I've made two and I use one of them every time out.

One is a simple lanyard that is just an old shoe lace that I keep nippers and hemos on. I use this one 90% of the time when I'm wearing the waist pack. I tuck the nippers and hemos into the top of chest waders or into a shirt pocket to keep things from swinging around and so that the hemos don't fall off as I'm walking in the water (this has happened before).

The other is more elaborate with snap swivels and beads. It holds a tippet post, floatant, nippers, hemos, and has a fly patch made from 4mm craft foam. When I use this lanyard it is all I take with me, I put a handful of flies into the fly patch and hit the water.