Murray's Hellgramite is also the pattern that's working well for me. I like tying mine with the dumbbell eyes (Clouser style). You can weight them with heavy lead wire if you don't like the eyes but you want to get 'em real deep. I like them riding hook up as they bounce off the bottom - less snags and keeps the hook sharper longer. Also when you catch a fish on a pattern with dumbbell eyes they are very often hooked cleanly in the upper lip which makes for a real clean, quick release.
