Thanks for the comments...and I am still reeling from the trip. The sight of those Cutthroats roaming the shores with their contrasting fire red cheeks, and the image of the 17incher that I caught rising slowly to slurp a generic dry fly will be embedded in my mind for good. Not to mention seeing my sister's large cutthroat shaking his big head and trying not to get too excited, as to make her nervous while she fought her first large trout. I swear that my hands were shaking worse, as she fought that fish, than with any catch that I have ever had.

Troy,

Regarding the fly fishing gear, I pre-shipped mine out there, but I carried it on to the plane, during the trip back. The airlines did not give me any hassle.
