

---

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : Pine Creek watershed probable issue

Re: Pine Creek watershed probable issue

Author: : shortrod

Date: : 2013/7/10 9:18:52

URL:

Quote:

Chaz wrote:

The latest research indicates that felt soles have nothing to do with the spread of dydimo. And you should clean your boat every time it is moved from one watershed to another.

Quote:

midgeman wrote:

I believe the culprit is migratory birds.

Take a peek at this map from 2008. This map is linked to from the link that turkey provided.

After looking at that, the only reasonable conclusion is that it is spread by anglers; specifically flyfishermen.

Birds usually migrate north and south not east and west. They have been doing it for millions of years. This is a more recent phenomenon.

It is the equivalent of a venereal disease.