

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Tricos??

Re: Tricos??

Author: : Foxgap239

Date: : 2013/7/10 14:34:14

URL:

Quote:

ryguyfi wrote:

I've been putting a "backpack" on my spinners the last few years. Basically take a small piece of orange foam and tie it like a nymph shell over the back of the spent wing. It will allow the fly to float just a bit longer (at least that's what I tell myself) and gives you a hi viz sighter as well. Might be just enough to see on the tiny trico's.

Here's a good reference, but I tie mine a bit smaller than that.

http://www.brackhilltackle.com/TroutF ... ners/RustyFoamSpinner.htm

Ryan, really cool idea which never entered my mind. I'll have to give these a try. Love threads like this. Incredibly informative.