

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : fishing alone.

Re: fishing alone.

Author: : greenghost

Date: : 2013/7/10 23:08:37

URL:

Fishing alone is a two edge sword.

I love fishing remote areas for brookies as well as bigger waters. To me, being alone in beautiful surroundings is beyond addicting. It's the closest to God I feel outside of church. However, like others have said, if you run into trouble a couple miles up a remote valley, you could be screwed. And now that I am older, I realize if something does happen, I probably wont make it out. Still, I do it.

That being said, some of the best times I've had fishing are the times I've shared with other fishermen. Unfortunately, my personal life is so fickle I can rarely schedule fishing with others. There have been many times I've gone with and met with PAFF board members. And there has NEVER been a time I regretted it.