

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Valley Creek Surprise 7-14-13

Re: Valley Creek Surprise 7-14-13

Author: : Swattie87

Date: : 2013/7/15 16:04:02

URL:

That's a really good looking LM and had to be a blast to catch. Stream LM's are reasonably rare in PA (but do occur) and are usually the result of escaping an impoundment somewhere in the watershed as a youngster. Possible it could have run up from the Skuke in really high water I guess, but more likely an escapee from a farm pond somewhere in Valley's watershed.

I think it's cool how they take on a more slender, streamlined shape when in moving water...they also tend to be more vibrantly colored (like this fish) in my experience.