By "big" I mean " as compared to the #22s and #24s I usually cast with my 1wt, the #12 streamer is big.

With lots of water moving since the rain for the past few days, I thought the streamer would be a good choice at dusk.

As for the bass, I just had never even seen one in Valley before last night.

Just curious to know how typical that is as the summer moves on. Hoping that it is not detrimental to the trout population?..
