

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Valley Creek Surprise 7-14-13

Re: Valley Creek Surprise 7-14-13

Author: : englishprof

Date: : 2013/7/15 19:00:08

URL:

I've posted this before. The browns dominate that stream like no other creek in the State. They should be in no fear of that bass. And, given its size, the bass should not be in too much fear either. I'm sure it came from a farm pond during one of the floods. If it came as a little guy, it would not have escaped a brown.

I probably fish Valley more than anyone (you won't see me though) and have never caught anything but trout until this year. No chubs, no suckers, no fallfish, no nothing. It's really kind of amazing. A couple of months ago, I started catching bluegills and only in one spot. Maybe a dozen over a few outings. Last month or so.....no bluegills. Wonder what happened to them?

By the way, very nice bass!!!!