
Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : Bass flies

Re: Bass flies

Author: : mike_richardson

Date: : 2013/7/16 11:52:46

URL:

I need to focus on warm water a bit more. Fly fishing lost its luster as of lately, and could bring it back with some unfamiliar water, and new species.

I'll try to get a concept of the crayfish tied up tonight and send you a picture via pm or facebook.

I think that adding some sort of crayfish pattern to your arsenal would be a good move. There are a lot better patterns out there than the one i suggested with your material.

Crayfish are not just for bass but other fish in the rivers hammer those things as well. I caught a few trout, and a lot of rockbass on mine . A friend slammed carp on the effluent of Yellow Creek in Indiana County on a few I gave him to try on small mouth, since I never got out because of the birth of my son. One of the carp weighed 35# and snapped his 8 wt. He said he caught a few smallies, but the carp were all over them.