

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : How a Stream Can Change

Re: How a Stream Can Change

Author: : Tups

Date: : 2013/7/16 22:23:54

URL:

P: I just re-read your message and see that you fished all the way to the mouth and did not see any debris piles, so it is likely that the wood made it all the way to the river and out, suggesting that your stream reached its peak stage well before the river rose. Had the receiving river rose earlier, a backwater effect might have caused the wood from your stream to collect at its mouth. This certainly is a fruitful field for speculation.