Since I have been competing and practicing that style of fishing I can go to any stream and be successful. Even the hardest streams. I don't plan on competing forever I'm just honing my skills. I was kind of hesitant at first, but after a couple I really enjoy them. And I learn so much when I go to penns, BFC, and spring I usually do well. I did well on the Davidson the other year when it was low and clear flowing a curly.

You learn about leaders sighters, tungsten beads, hot spots, dry dropper rigs, short and long line nymphing, all kinds of neat stuff. Which also keeps your mind active.

It's still all about having fun. And I have a lot more fun when I catch fish when I go out. I don't like getting the skunk.
