Swattie,

A beautiful RB - I just love 'em, they're my favorite sunfish by a wide margin. Note the red outer edges of the caudal.

And an interesting note about the bass year class. Many less informed anglers don't see the connection between SMB year class success and the subsequent quality of bass fishing in the 4-10 years that follow. This trend is much less perceptible with trout (I really don't even pay attention to trout year classes much other than on Big Spring) as they don't live as long and trout streams often don't have the wide ranging ups and down's typical of river bass spawning success. It will be interesting to watch this class of fish grow over the next few years as you continue to fish this waterway. Good stuff.
