P.S. Bass fishing tournaments are more in the direction I am talking. Yeah, they have a home base that you leave from and have to return to by a certain time. But competitors are allowed to fish wherever they please, so long as they can reach it by boat or foot. They aren't held to fish this particular section at certain times.

For instance, for the Pittsburgh bass tournaments. They can fish the Yough, Kinzua tailrace, the Clarion, etc. Of course, the farther they go from downtown, the more time they spend travelling and the less time fishing, but that's part of it. And for me, when I watch those, I'm less interested in what lures they are using, or what techniques, and much more interested to see WHERE they go.
