

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Bittersweet Moment

Re: Bittersweet Moment

Author: : boychick

Date: : 2013/7/18 14:46:59

URL:

I think it's important that people hear this story. It's a touching story and this man is an excellent role model for us all. We owe it to those fly anglers that helped us, to pass the sport down to the next generation. This is the best example of paying it forward in the sport of fly fishing that I've heard about. I think you did a good thing by sharing this story and how it made you feel. The world needs more of the kind of generosity that man showed you and it is perfectly OK for you to express gratitude. You kept the man's identity confidential, you did not expose him, you were respectful in your description of him, and I think you showed him tremendous respect by sharing his story. As I read his story, it was clear that it was about this man's generous act of passing on the sport of fly fishing to the next generation. This was about him, not about you. You did nothing wrong or offensive by sharing this story.