

Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : Fly Tying Rubber Leg Stone

Re: Fly Tying Rubber Leg Stone

Author: : mike_richardson

Date: : 2013/7/18 14:47:50

URL:

I like to add rubber leg antenna on mine as well. They do not look as real but I like the added movement. Depends on the hole size of your bead if you can slide it up to the eye over the legs.

I like using this pattern a lot. I have made some very heavy versions for high water with a tung bead head, single wrapped body, and double wrapped thorax. It is a load to cast but definitely gets you down.

I believe it is called a drone stone pattern that is similar but is a woven body. I use hare mask, and natural skin and decent results.

Thanks for the video. Definitely a versatile pattern that should be in every fly box in multiple colors and size variations.