Great story, sad, but great.

I have found that an author often tells more than he knows when he writes.

in your case Sas, you have shown in your own way your utmost respect to this man by accepting his gift and request and also tipping your hat to a journey we are all on. At some point most of us will wake up one day and know that we made our final cast. sharing that with others who can truly appreciate that is not wrong. I will think of this man now for years and his gesture took the kind of strength most don't possess. God bless that man and may we all have the strength and courage to do the same if we ever get the chance. That is truly what it is all about. he did indeed give his life away, we should respect that and celebrate his life!
