As of right now, its got some black walnut and cotton wood rings glued on for a grip, and I had planned on turning bith this blank and another rod im converting the other night. But when I called my buddy with the metal lathe I was informed he's on vacation for the next week. So im sort of stuck, I dont know any one with a big enough lathe to chuck up tbe rods wtb the guides in place so, I cant move forward until I can turn the grips. And I wanna use a metal lathe to turn the reel insert as well since the o.d. on it has to be 17mm and the i.d. has to be 13mm to fit over the butt of tbe blank.

So thats where it stands as of right now. The only other thing I need to do is build a multi rod drying rack, so I can epoxy all the wraps in one night vs a week(i'm doing a few rod repairs as well for other people).
