gfen, a few things:

1. stop giving away my trade rod building secrets. WTF!
2. i agree with your lining theory, it is a start point. though i dont have one of each size and style line to try out on a rod so i use css to get me where i'm gonna start my educated guess from. then it's how "fast" the rod feels without line on it then i start point for a guess at a line. like this build, if it stays within the 7wt range after wrapping and epoxy i'll throw my 7wt rio gold on it, if i want it to be a bit faster i know where i can get a sage quiet taper II 6wt line for it. and i'm hoping to make that work. i really like the long taper lines. and if i think i should go heavier i'll try to find a triangle taper wulff, and use that. wanna try one of those lines as well just haven't bought one.
